WHERE HISTORY AND MODERNITY DANCE TO FREVO AND MARACATU BEAT!

The capital of Pernambuco State, Recife was awarded by UNESCO the title of Creative City of Music, and it is a renowned Brazilian cultural and gastronomic center. The city is plural in attractives: one can see it by just looking at the harmonic contrast there is between old monuments of Recife Antigo and the modern buildings at the city's business center.

The Capibaribe River is a central element to Recife's geography, cutting through the city and providing a unique landscape, granting it the nickname "the Brazilian Venice".

It's the birthplace of two important dance styles: frevo and maracatu. Frevo is known for its contagious energy and maracatu is an african-brazilian cultural manifestation.
